Important Information that Applies to Estates

Information on this page is provided to assist you with gathering documents and other information we need when preparing the fiduciary tax return of an estate.

- An estate comes into existence on the date of death of the decedent. The estate ends when all assets held by the estate have been distributed.
- All income earned by the decedent prior to death is reported on the final Individual 1040 return of the decedent. All income earned by the estate is reported on the estate Fiduciary 1041 return.
- For the year of death, it is therefore necessary to file two short-year tax returns: One for the decedent, and one for the estate. After the year of death, Fiduciary 1041 tax returns are filed for the estate until the estate is closed and all remaining assets of the estate are distributed to beneficiaries, heirs, or charity. Applies to decedents who pass away without a living trust.

The executor or administrator of an estate is responsible for performing the following duties relating to tax matters of the estate:

- Obtaining an employer identification number (EIN)
- Filing necessary income and estate-tax returns including:
 - The estate's income tax return (both federal and state),
 - The federal estate-tax return (if required),
 - The state death tax return (if required)
 - The deceased's final income tax return (federal and state).
- Payment of debts owed by the estate. Taxes usually must be paid before other debts.
- Paying all death taxes (i.e., estate and inheritance). Often it is necessary to hire an appraiser to value certain assets of the estate, such as a business, pension, or real estate, since estate taxes are based on the "fair market" value of the assets. After the filing of the returns and payment of taxes, the Internal Revenue Service will generally send some type of estate closing letter accepting the return. Occasionally, the return will be audited.

The executor of an estate should keep meticulous bookkeeping records which detail all income and expenditures of the estate. Depending on circumstances and upon the stipulations set forth within the will, beneficiaries of the estate may receive partial distributions of their inheritance prior to the closing of the estate. Tax laws and rulings governing administration of estates, particularly with respect to taxes, are complex. Therefore, an executor can be in charge for two or three years before the estate administration is completed. During the period the estate continues to exist, the executor is required to pay necessary expenses relating to administration of the estate from the estate's assets.

If the estate sold or disposed of assets during the year, the sale of these items must be reported on the tax return of the estate. The following information should be maintained by the estate:

- An inventory of the items sold,
- The fair market value of these items on the date of death,
- Costs related to maintaining, repairing, improving, holding and selling assets
- The date of sale and sales price

Examples of the kinds of assets the estate or trust may have sold include:

- Home
- Rental property
- Stocks and bonds
- Personal property such as furniture, jewelry and vehicles.
